I can't find the exact file it contains, in meta data information. I used PowerCD to make an ISO of the disk and it is basically empty. I have some ISO I made with the Media Creator XP so the software works. I can't find a way to fix the meta data without completely re-making the ISO, because when I extracted the data it was too damaged to read. I just want to get rid of the meta data so when I burn it to disc it can work in all computers. Let me know if you can help me Thanks I have read the forums and it seem to be that on some systems (when removing the hidden files in XP) the meta data is damaged. This is a very interesting operating system, based on debian (so it is like Linux) and it seems to be ideal for any mini-computer. Not so long ago I downloaded and tested it on a NUC (little red thing) which has no mouse or keyboard (and has tiny USB ports). In terms of hardware, this is an excellent choice. It is small and consumes less energy than a regular mini f678ea9f9e
